

THREE CASTLES BURNING

Chippers and Catholicism: Dublin's Little Italy

Donal Fallon | Donal Fallon is a historian based in Dublin

The Heirlooms & Hand-me-downs project is referenced in the blog post

'It's rewarding to go for a walk in the streets around the Iveagh Trust buildings where you will come across the work of the artist Chris Reid entitled 'Heirlooms and Hand-me-downs' there are bronze plaques on the walls of the red brick buildings giving oral history recollections of the area and Dublin more broadly. People remember hardship, happiness, cinemas, dancehalls, work, the absence of work, family and community. On Chancery Lane beside Stay City aparthotel, plaques tell you, some of Chris's plaques this was 'Little Italy'. One depicts a Hurdy Gurdy, once popular with migrant Italian musicians . . . '

To listen to the full blog post use this link:

<https://open.spotify.com/episode/1psvFjU17ptypzyNKLSgS1?si=ClkPYAuRKW2RJWy1nOWT>

Q